Born Toussine Louis on November 1, 1916 in Wallace, Louisiana, this child was the daughter of Celestine Louis and Sidney Jacob. Toussine's mother died while giving her life. She was shuffled from relative to relative, as if unwanted. She was forced to become a child bride and mother at the tender age of 14. She had become an adult NOT of her own free will. This precious little girl never knew what it meant to be a dearly loved daughter. WHAT A LIFE.....

From the rice fields in and around Edgar and Wallace, Louisiana, to the strawberry fields, the peach and apple orchards in and around Berrien Springs, Michigan, ending in the cheap labored orange fields in and around Central Florida. A canvas sack around her already darkened neck would someday help to tell her story. Her living conditions consisted of a wood stove for cooking and heating in a three room shack, no electricity, an outhouse and an outdoor faucet. Wooden orange crates held up a mattress for the bed. Only one phone existed in the quarters of about 50 people and that was in the overseer's office. The quarters, called Alpine, was 5 miles from the nearest town and consisted of families from Louisiana, South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi. The other townships called us Alapinians but their was unity in Alpine. Madea endured many hardships and much physical abuse with mental and physical scars to prove it. She cried many nights wondering how she would care for us. Still, Toussine remained strong for John, Mitchel, Carol, Edith, Brinda and Bernadine, her six children.

Outsiders laughed at us because of the poverty we had to endure. The little education she had was obtained through her children. Madea couldn't afford Xmas for all of us so a couple of us had to wait until later. We may have been poor materialistically, but she blessed us with lots of love.

Toussine was "Madea" to us and close family friends and "Ms. Corinne" to others. She never met anyone she considered a stranger. With gentle kindness she would feed all who were hungry that came to her door. She'd say, "You never know, you might be turning away an angel". That was our "Madea". She was a little woman with a "BIG" heart. We all miss you dearly.

She was one of the best cooks in our area with her flair of Cajun/Creole and Southern style cuisine.

Madea's Secrets are done in volumes as not to overwhelm you with her wide array of scrumptious recipes.

Boy, could that woman cook!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

From our family to yours.
